

Hey there!

I'm Konrad and I've spent over 10 years working in the devtooling industry tying together technical product marketing, DevRel, product management, content and GTM efforts in order to drive companies inbound and outbound growth.

All my career till now was focused around dev tools. I've been building and marketing them as well as focusing on their PLG in various shapes for developer focused companies of different sizes.

Started my career being deeply invested in European hackathon and developer ecosystem scene, went through my software engineering stage of life to find out that I'm quite an effective all around person that eventually led me to driving growth for companies like AngelHack, GitHub, Auth0, Okta and recently Oxla, both in hands-on roles as well as lead & managerial ones.

Being passionate about constant innovation and developer products craftsmanship I'm looking for ventures that deeply understand how product, technical product marketing, devrel and engineering pieces can be connected together to drive company and customers' growth.

Let's talk if you really believe that your product can build a more effective, simpler to use and faster solution!
