

Hey there!

I'm Konrad and I've spent around 10 years working in the devtooling space tying together developer marketing and devrel, driving inbound and outbound growth for companies like Oxla (acquired by Redpanda Data), Okta, Auth0, GitHub, Major League Hacking, AngelHack or Estimote.

All my career has been revolving around dev tools. I've been building, marketing them but also architecting product and founder-led motions in various shapes, scaling developer communities from hundreds to tens of thousands of devs.

I started my career by pioneering the European hackathon and developer ecosystem scene (AGHacks), went through my software engineering stage of life to find out that I'm quite an effective all around person that throughout my career has driven success, both in hands-on as well as strategic roles.

Being passionate about innovation and developer products craftsmanship I'm looking for ventures that deeply understand how product, developer marketing, devrel and engineering can be connected together to drive company and developer community growth.
