Hey there!

I'm Konrad and I've spent around 10 years working in the devtooling space tying together developer relations and developer marketing in order to drive inbound and outbound growth for companies like Oxla (acq. by Redpanda Data) Okta, Auth0, GitHub, Major League Hacking, AngelHack or Estimote.

All my career till now was focused around dev tools. I've been building, marketing them as well as architecting product and founder-led motions in various shapes, scaling value for hundreds to tens of thousands of developers.

Started my career by pioneering European hackathon and developer ecosystem scene, went through my software engineering stage of life to find out that I'm quite an effective all around person that throughout his career has driven success, both in hands-on roles as well as ops & managerial ones.

Being passionate about constant innovation and developer products craftsmanship I'm looking for ventures that deeply understand how product, developer marketing, devrel and engineering can be connected together to drive company and developer community growth.

Let's talk if you really believe that your product can build a more effective, simpler to use and faster solution!

Konrad