Hey there!

I'm Konrad and I've spent more than 10 years working with developer focused products and various developer ecosystems. Started my career in tech by organizing the biggest student hackathon in Europe which later on led me to my first software engineering job. After that, by combining my passion for software and developer communities I dived into the devrel world and went from community engineering to leading a team of community engineers and then being a developer community program manager, which later on led me to strategy related, tech programs and product management role that I've held at Oxla recently.

All my career till now allowed me to understand how different companies work and succeed starting from startups like Estimote and Oxla through mid-size companies like Auth0, finishing with bigger corporations like Okta. I'm an all-around person that can lead, execute and manage in order to deliver results for the organization.

Being passionate about innovation I bring in my technical and non-technical skills in order to create more valuable and useful products. Always doing my best to spark creative and critical thinking in others and also to empower my team and company I work for as much as I can. Let's work together to bring add value to the market.

Hope to collaborate with you soon!

Konrad